5 Minute Challenge—Call a family member, or use a blog or forum to share your research.

Steps:

1. Decide what to share
   Even if you don’t have a lot of information, share as much of your genealogy as you want and in ways you feel comfortable.

2. Pick a method to share
   Make sure your information has been verified with records, share in a variety of ways if you want to reach more people.

3. Share
   Remember, share information about living people only after obtaining their permission first.

Helpful hints:

Sharing your family history research is a great way to celebrate the work you’ve done, recognize those who’ve helped you, and help others so they don’t have to redo the work.

Sharing can also lead you to other people who may share genealogy information that you’re looking for.

But more importantly, sharing is a great way to connect with your living relatives!
